D. Presentations

1. Potential Dashboards for Pretrial Data

Presented by Anadon

Reviewed different metrics that could be reported in the dashboards. Discussion of financial conditions of release, reporting of Public Safety Assessments (PSA), performance metrics, baseline measures, such as court appearance rate, release rate, and public safety rate (reflecting the number of people who are and are not arrested on new charges while on pretrial release). Emphasis on changing from a decision-making framework (DMF) to a release conditions matrix (RCM) to reflect goals of pretrial release. Discussion of performance measures to evaluate process rather than sharing the numbers and statistics without context.

Discussion ensued regarding distinction between the actual assessment of a signature bond by the court commissioner compared to the PSA recommendation of a signature bond. Discussion about the number of charges versus people who are in the jail with holds. Discussion of meaningful performance measures that can move towards policy. Distinction between actuarial data compared to an actuarial assessment in regard to predicting someone's failure to appear. Discussion of defining a non-appearance, and whether that is measured at the individual person or charge level.

2. Extension of PSA Study

Presented by Clark-Bernhardt and Esqueda

PSA Assessors are in the 2022 budget. The Access to Justice Lab (A2J) is interested in doing a study within the existing PSA project regarding probable cause statements. This would require transcripts of a lot of initial appearance proceedings. Transcripts will be the challenging piece, but these are public records.

3. MDRC Update

Presented by Clark-Bernhardt

MDRC is in the process of completing a dosage study to determine how much pretrial services supervision is appropriate for different people on pretrial release. This process has slowed slightly with staffing changes but is ongoing.

4. Advancing Pretrial Policy and Research (APPR): Next Steps and Timeline for Technical Assistance

Presented by Clark-Bernhardt

APPR emphasizes the need to move from a decision-making framework (DMF) to a release condition matrix (RCM) to reflect the goals of pretrial release. This shifts the focus and perspective of pretrial justice and creates a more equitable system. There is a technical assistance program that would be beneficial, but it would be resource-intensive on pretrial services to apply. The CJC-PT would need to include motion language on a future meeting agenda to move this forward.

5. Historic Trends of Pretrial Supervision Since its Creation

Esqueda provided an overview of the history of pretrial supervision from its inception to today. See attached timeline.

Discussion ensued regarding cost of creating a new Pre-Trial Services Department.
